Undeclared Civil War Raging In China

REDS, CHIANG FORCES BATTLE FOR CONTROLS

11 Key Provinces Scenes Of Bitter Fighting; Casualties Said High
EACH BLAMES OTHER
1,000,000 Troops Reported To Be Taking Part In Widespread Fights

CHUNGKING, Oct. 29—Undeclared civil war gripped China today with more than 1,000,000 central government and Chinese Communist troops fighting it out for control of 11 key provinces in north, east, south and central China.

Both government and Communist sources acknowledged that internal strife had reached a new high pitch while so-called unity talks dragged on in Chungking with no definite solution yet in sight.

The Communists charged through their New China Daily that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has hurled 800,000 central government troops against the Communist eighth route army in north China and the new fourth army in east China.

Fighting is raging in Shansi, Suiyuan, Shensi, Hopeh, Shantung, Kiangsu, Honan, Anhui, Hubei, Chekiang and Kwangtung provinces, the New China Daily said.

Central government spokesman countered with charges that the Communists have launched at least three general offensives and already have seized four important cities and 13 districts in Shansi and Suiyuan provinces.

Each group accused the other of being the aggressor.

Manchuria Next?

There appeared some danger that the civil war would spread to newly-liberated Manchuria. A United Press dispatch from Hulutao said withdrawing Soviet forces were turning over Manchurian territory to Chinese Communist troops.

Communist spokesman at Hulutao said any attempt by central government forces to occupy Manchuria before a complete settlement had been reached with the Communist regime at Yenan would be fought on the beaches and at the great wall by the northeastern people's army.

Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, central government governor of Shansi province in north-central China, said as many as 50 engagements have been fought every day since Japan's surrender in his province.

He said the Communists had wrested the highway town of Chanchih in southeast Shansi from his troops Oct. 8 after a five-day battle in which the government forces suffered 15,000 casualties. (Continued on Page Two)

'Enemies' In Japanese Government

High Allied Official Says 'They Will Not Get By With Anything'

TOKYO, Oct. 29—A high Allied official charged today that the Japanese government contains "enemies" of the Allies, and predicted that it will fall when confronted by its first major crisis.

A ranking official forecast food riots in Japan this winter if the Allies do not bring in supplies to ease a serious shortage. Such developments may topple the government of Premier Kijuro Shidehara, he said.

"We know we have enemies in the government, no matter how willing and polite they try to act," the official said. "But they will not get by with anything."

Foreign Minister Shigeru Yoshida called on Gen. Douglas MacArthur today. Japanese sources said he asked for modification of MacArthur's demand for the immediate recall of all Japanese diplomatic representatives abroad.

The Japanese contended that the directive would shackle Japan in diplomatic functions, particularly with neutral states. They admitted that the government held little hope of getting the order countermanded altogether, but did hope for leniency.

The Allied official who cannot be identified charged that in the two months of allied occupation Japanese leadership had been weak and undecided. He attributed part of the blame to the Japanese people themselves.

"Every afternoon," he said, "you can see hundreds of persons lined up."

BLOODY BATTLES RAGE IN JAVA

British Report Occupation Forces Suffered Some Casualties In Fight

BATAVIA, Oct. 29—Bloody fighting flared with renewed intensity today at Soerabaja, biggest naval base in Java, where 2,000 to 3,000 British troops battled Indonesian extremists armed with captured Japanese tanks and armored cars.

British officers reported that their occupation forces had suffered "some" casualties in the battle of Soerabaja. One Indian officer was known killed and a British officer and several Indian troops wounded.

Dr. I. R. Sukarno, president of the unrecognized Indonesian republic, disavowed the resistance movement at Soerabaja. He flew to the city in eastern Java to investigate the status of the extremists, led by one Dr. Mustopo. Sukarno said Mustopo was "insane."

The fighting at Soerabaja was the most violent manifestation of native resistance in the Netherlands East Indies since the surrender of Japan.

Two American freighters carrying Dutch stores from Dutch and British New Guinea were due to reach Batavia tomorrow. They were the 6,800-ton Cape Spear, skippered by Capt. Charles Hudson of Rochester, N. Y., and a 10,000-ton Liberty ship of which Capt. William Bowman of San Pedro, Calif., was commander.

An allied plane took Sukarno and other members of his "republican government" to Soerabaja this morning. Sukarno landed there at 3 p. m. A truce early in the afternoon, apparently arranged for his arrival, was broken by heavy fighting later in the day.

The main fighting area was around the Soerabaja waterworks on the south side of the town.

Six British Thunderbolts swooped over the city in a show of strength. A Dutch Catalina flying boat flew over Soerabaja this morning and returned to Batavia with 11 machine gun bullet holes in the fuselage. It was fired on when it dipped over the Guben rail station at 150 feet.

Yamashita Accused On 123 Charges As Trial Opens In Manila Court

MANILA, Oct. 29—Three witnesses testified at the opening of Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita's war crimes trial today that they saw his troops bayonet and shoot to death 40 civilians in Red Cross headquarters during the battle of Manila last February.

Most of the victims were women and children. One was a 10-day-old baby.

A fourth witness, Juan P. Juan, a Filipino educator whose wife, two daughters, daughter-in-law and seven grandchildren died in the slaughter, said that a Japanese captain three months earlier had told him that the Japanese intended to kill all white persons in the Orient.

Yamashita, the erstwhile "Tiger of Malaya" who once was regarded as Japan's best field general, sat unsmiling as the witnesses told of atrocities unparalleled even in the Nazi horror camps of Germany.

Fifty-nine additional charges were added at the opening of the trial to the 64 war crimes originally lodged against him.

The 123 counts hold Yamashita responsible, as supreme Japanese commander in the Philippines in 1944 and 1945, for the deaths of 57,000 Americans, Filipinos and others through torture, execution, starvation and neglect.

Yamashita conferred frequently with his interpreter and his counsel as the trial progressed. He wore his full general's uniform with four rows of ribbons across his left chest.

The trial got under way in the jam-packed former ballroom of the United States high commissioner's residence after the five-man military tribunal dismissed a defense motion contending that the proceedings violated the American constitution.

Actress Testifies
Pretty Patrocino Abad, 26-year-old Filipino actress, was the first witness summoned to tell of the massacre at Red Cross headquarters.

Between sobs, she testified that Japanese enlisted navy men bayoneted her nine times and her 10-month-old daughter three times. (Continued on Page Two)

YOUTH CHARGED WITH KILLING HIS STEPFATHER

BABYLON, N. Y., Oct. 29—A murder charge was filed today against Joseph Gordon Myers, 18, for slaying his 52-year-old stepfather who scolded the boy for quarreling with his mother.

Police said Walter Ashton was shot to death early Sunday after a party on the family farm near Wyandanch, N. Y., who recently quit school to work on the farm, had been drinking during the party, and was reviling his mother for burning out the clutch on the family automobile, police said.

Ashton and several male guests rebuked the youth and in a scuffle that followed, Myers' eye was blacked. He left the house, reentered through the kitchen, loaded a 20-gauge double barreled shotgun, returned to the living room and shot Ashton while his mother and several lingering guests looked on, police said.

CROP GOALS TO CHANGE LITTLE

Farmers Will Be Asked To Produce About Same Amount As This Year

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—The government will call on farmers for about the same volume of crop and livestock production in 1946 as this year, but goals may drop for some important war crops, it was disclosed today.

The overall crop goal is likely to be nearly as high as the 1945 acreage of 364,000,000 acres. But individual goals may change as the emphasis shifts from all-out production for war.

The agriculture department does not plan to issue the annual "goals" program until after Dec. 1 or about a month later than usual. There will be a change in purpose along with the change in goals.

During the war, they were intended as a spur to fullest production. Henceforth, they will serve as a guide to farmers on the level of production the government believes desirable to meet demand and stave off bugaboo surpluses.

Some department officials favor putting "teeth" in the goals by tying them to government price supports. Under such a plan, the government's obligation to make good on price support promises would be erased if farmers exceed their goals.

For most goals, Secretary Clinton P. Anderson will adopt a "middle of the road" policy and call for only little expansion or reduction. It generally is believed that a concerted government program to reduce farm output will not come until 1947.

Livestock producers will be asked to send 35,000,000 head of cattle to market in 1946 in an effort to reduce still-high range numbers to 78,000,000. This goal would about equal the slaughter rate this year.

However, the department plans to call for a sharp cut in the output of poultry and eggs. The goals likely will request farmers to cut (Continued on Page Two)

QUICK APPROVAL OF COMPROMISE TAX BILL SEEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—Congressional tax leaders expect overwhelming approval of their compromise $5,920,000,000 tax relief bill this week, but some disagree on prospects for further corporate reductions. They agree, however, that individuals can expect further cuts in 1947.

The compromise measure, completed by house and senate conferees Saturday, will be put to a vote in the house tomorrow and in the senate tomorrow or Wednesday. The conferees expected little or no opposition.

Under the bill, individuals would receive $2,644,000,000 in tax reductions in 1946 and corporate tax liabilities next year would drop by $3,136,000,000. The $5 automobile use tax also would be repealed but excise taxes would be kept at present levels.

Some Diplomats Believe President's Speech May Raise U. S.-Red Tension

BY R. H. SHACKFORD
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—Some foreign diplomats doubted today that President Truman's foreign policy speech would ease the tension between the United States and Soviet Russia.

There was no criticism of his declaration of principles, all of which had been stated before.

But some diplomats felt that his "big stick" military policy, which might even aggravate Russian-American relations on some problems.

The speech generally seemed to have raised more questions than it answered. Basic question was whether the U. S. had been applying the President's principles or how it was going to do so in the future. Republican members of congress especially raised this point.

Diplomatic observers and editorialists of major newspapers were more specific in their criticism—some pointing out several contradictions in the speech itself and also between American principles and practice. They wondered whether Mr. Truman's promise of this country's good intentions would be taken at face value abroad, especially in Soviet Russia.

There was at least one glaring paradox in Mr. Truman's address that was certain to bring reaction from the Russians, as it had in the past.

That was his reiteration that the United States does not want one-inch of territory "anywhere in the world."

Qualifies Statement
But Mr. Truman, as before, sharply qualified that statement by adding that we would insist on "the right to establish necessary bases for our own protection." He made no suggestion of international control of bases.

Some diplomats believe such practice will give Russia justification for seeking a foothold in the Mediterranean or North Africa. Mr. Truman explained his position by stating that America's armed might and her desire for bases were not for war or for conquest—but to preserve the peace of the world. Even diplomats who are convinced of America's good faith point out that few nations are willing to take such an expression of good intentions by another at face value.

The President's speech outlined the 12 fundamental points of American foreign policy. It also expressed U. S. determination to retain the most powerful military force in the world and to keep the industrial secrets of the atomic bomb as "a sacred trust." Following are some of the day-to-day problems to which such policies must be applied:

TRUMAN CANCELS PLANS TO MAKE GEORGIA VISIT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—The White House announced today that President Truman, because of the "pressure of work here," has cancelled plans to visit Georgia this weekend.

The White House would say nothing about Mr. Truman's plans to speak in North Carolina Friday, but further word on this trip might come during the day.

The President was scheduled to visit Atlanta Saturday and attend the Duke-Georgia Tech football game, and visit Warm Springs, Ga., Sunday.

Cancellation of the trip plans came as no surprise. The President was criticized in some quarters after his recent trip to attend a county fair in Claiborneville, Mo., and the following two days at a fishing lodge on Reelfoot Lake, Tenn.

ATTLEE MAY VISIT U. S.
LONDON, Oct. 29—Reports reached here today that Prime Minister Attlee may go to Washington early next month to discuss personally with President Truman the atomic bomb and other pressing international problems.

CIO DEMANDS WAGE BOOST

Higher Wages Without Price Increases Asked By Union Heads

BULLETIN
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29—AFL and CIO machinists went on strike today in an unsanctioned walkout which eventually may effect 100,000 workers.

By United Press
Labor and industry, on the brink of new major strikes, looked to capitol hill today for direction or guidance in the growing reconversion snarl over postwar wages.

The number of strike-idle had dropped to less than 200,000, but the situation appeared a calm before a storm as labor unrest spanned the nation and strike machinery was set in motion in the automotive, steel, electrical, textile and other industries.

The long-awaited administration policy on wages and prices was expected to come tomorrow night in a radio address (at 10 p. m. EST over major networks) from President Truman. It was believed Mr. Truman would advocate higher rates of pay to fill the gap between inflated wartime take-home wages and reductions caused by shorter postwar hours and dropped incentive pay.

Meantime, the CIO warned through its monthly publication, "Economic Outlook," that "strikes on an ever-growing scale" would be the outcome unless there were substantial wage boosts. This added strength to the CIO demand for a basic wage increase of 30 per cent.

Turn Down Offer
Simultaneously, in Detroit, the CIO United Automobile Workers turned thumbs down on an offer of General Motors Corp. to pay six cents more an hour for a 45-hour week.

UAW Vice President Walter P. Reuther said the union would give further reasons, at resumption of wage negotiations with the big automakers this week, why GM could not pay salaries 30 per cent without raising new car prices.

Support of the higher wage demands came also from AFL President William Green, who said at Cambridge, Mass., yesterday that labor would make continuous use of its strike weapon until workers get a fair share of profits. He said, however, the AFL preferred (Continued on Page Two)

Strikes At A Glance

By United Press
Machinists—13,000 CIO and AFL machinists in 179 shipyards, machine shops, foundries and other plants were scheduled to strike today in the San Francisco bay area in support of demands for a 30 percent wage boost.

Airlines—Only a few of 92 scheduled American airlines flights slated for cancellation today despite a strike of maintenance crews. Only 31 flights made yesterday. Chicago-New York and Detroit-New York operations were almost normal.

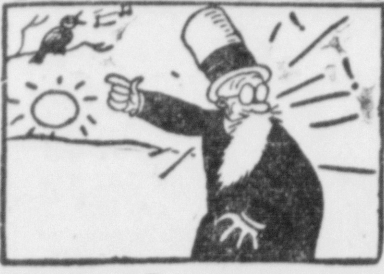

Movies—Hollywood film strikers notified producers that picket lines again would be set up around studios Wednesday unless conflicting issues were ironed out although the eight-month AFL jurisdictional dispute was considered settled last week.

Glass—18,000 CIO glass workers still were on strike at 12 Libbey-Owens-Ford and Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plants over contract disputes.

Lumber—Demanding a $1.10 minimum hourly wage, 61,000 AFL lumber workers continued a work stoppage in the northwest.

Shipping—Shipping operations at Houston, Tex., biggest inland port, were tied up by a strike of AFL warehousemen.

"peaceful" collective bargaining to strikes.

There was speculation in Washington that President Truman would try to show industry how it could pay higher wages without boosting prices through anticipated 10 per cent savings with the almost assured repeal of the excess profits tax Jan. 1.

The CIO, leader in the 30-per cent wage boost demand, kept eyes and ears on the White House. The union's executive board will meet in Washington Thursday to talk over its fight for higher pay and plan new moves on the basis of the President's statement tomorrow.

Chief UAW objection to the GM offer was that a six-cent hourly increase for a standard reconversion period work week of 45 hours failed to consider job needs of returning veterans, against whom Reuther charged the offer was a conspiracy. He said GM was "insuring suicide for itself and for our whole peacetime economy."

Evans charged Reuther claimed that GM had evaded the issue—a 30 per cent increase in wages without hiking consumer prices. GM President C. E. Wilson had claimed the longer work week would allow the corporation's employees to earn more.

Reuther announced flat rejection by UAW of Wilson's proposal that the union join the company in asking modification—for the reconversion period—of the wages-hours act.

UAW employees of General Motors have authorized a strike against the firm at any time. Such action, however, was being held up by UAW leaders, for use as a last resort. Chrysler Corp. UAW members also have approved a walk-out, while Ford Motor company workers take a strike vote on Nov. 7.

The United Steel Workers, one of the CIO's most powerful groups, was ready to ask the national labor relations board for permission to strike against 766 companies which have turned down the union's demand for a $2-a-day wage increase.

Strike Vote Approved A strike vote was sanctioned by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (CIO) among 170,000 General Electric company workers in 54 plants. This action was taken after the union's negotiating committee said GE had rejected demands for a $2 daily increase.

The union reported also having authorized a strike vote for 30,000 electrical workers of General Motors.

The $2-a-day demand was at the bottom of wage negotiations, opening tomorrow, between the electrical workers union and Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing company, with 100,000 involved.

At Lewistown, Me., representatives of 10,000 CIO textile workers voted yesterday to leave their jobs next Thursday in eight Lewistown mills and at Biddeford, Me., to bolster demands for a closed shop, guaranteed base pay for pieceworkers, and industrial insurance.

A serious strike threat in the San Francisco bay area loomed as a walkout of CIO and AFL machinists over rejection of their request for 30 per cent more pay was set for today. The employers pleaded no lockout in reply to a telegraphed appeal from U. S. conciliation chief Edgar L. Warren for a delay until a panel meeting Wednesday.

The infant died within four hours. She said she saw more than 50 other civilians who had sought refuge in the Red Cross building bayoneted and shot within one hour on that day—Feb. 10.

Miss Abad, who was wounded in the arms, legs, abdomen and back, still had a fractured arm in a sling.

Refugee Tells Of Slaughter

John K. Levy, a German refugee, testified that his fiancée and 10 other friends were bayoneted and shot to death by a Japanese officer and two enlisted men as they huddled in the ladies' toilet.

The refugees begged for mercy, Levy said, but the Japanese did not even pause in their grisly work. Levy said he suffered four bayonet wounds himself, but recovered.

Gliceria Andaya, a Red Cross nurse, said the German refugees were hiding in another section of the building from here, but she heard shots and the screams of the victims.

She said a three-year-old child sitting in a hallway near her was shot three times in the mouth by a Japanese, while she herself was bayoneted in the left breast. She went four days without medical aid, unable to leave the building.

Miss Andaya said she knew of 40 deaths in the building that day. The 47-year-old Juan said he was at his home next door when 11 members of his family were slain in the Red Cross building.

"I first thought it was the German Jew refugees who were being shot and bayoneted because a Japanese captain told me three months before that it was the Japanese plan to exterminate all whites in the Orient, including those of mixed blood," Juan said.

Not until he went to the Red Cross building and came across the body of his 10-day-old granddaughter did he learn that his family was among the victims, he said.

Trial Adjourns

The trial adjourned until 8:30 a. m. tomorrow (6:30 p. m. today EST) after the court ruled favorably on a defense plea that the prosecution be required to call witnesses in the order in which their evidence was outlined in the bill of particulars.

The court had dismissed the defense's contention that the trial was unconstitutional after Prosecutor Maj. Robert M. Kerr of Portland, Ore., retorted:

"Yamashita has no rights under the United States constitution. He's an enemy alien."

Kerr also said Yamashita was being held as a common criminal, not a prisoner of war.

"This is not going to be a pleasant case to hear or to try," Kerr said in his opening statement.

He said he would present witnesses to testify fully on all atrocities and other brutalities charged in the indictment.

If convicted, Yamashita faces almost certain execution despite the fact that he is not accused of participating personally in the crimes.

DEGREES ARE CONFERRED AT GRANGE MEETING

For the initiation exercises at the Washington grange, Friday evening, the Nebraska grange conferred the third and fourth degree on a class of candidates consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brobst, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Thomerson, Robert Jones and David Luckhart.

The later two were from the Salt Creek Valley grange who were other guests at the meeting. Fall flowers decorated the hall and the table where refreshments were served.

During the business meeting it was decided to give $25 to the war chest.

The next meeting will be election of officers.

CHOIR TO MEET THURSDAY NIGHT

First Rehearsal Of New Civic Group To Be Held In Memorial Hall

Circleville's newly-organized Civic Choir, the first such musical organization in the history of the city, will hold its first rehearsal Thursday evening in the Monday Club room in Memorial Hall.

This civic organization, which is an outgrowth of the union church services conducted by the Kiwanis Club, is open for membership to anyone in Pickaway county. All who sang with the choir during the union services are urged to attend the first rehearsal. Other singers in the county wishing to participate in the county wishing to participate ly invited.

The choir, under the direction of Carl C. Leist and the Rev. Carl L. Kennedy with Carl Palm newly elected accompanist, will present sacred and secular compositions at various seasons of the year. Work will begin Thursday night on a Christmas cantata.

All interested persons are requested to be present at the first rehearsal. The choir's finances will be met by assessing each member $2 per year.

Rehearsals will start promptly at 8:45 p. m., the directors announce.

CROP GOALS TO CHANGE LITTLE

The 1945 egg production of 5,000-000,000 down at least 15 per cent next year. The chicken goal will be reduced proportionately. A retrenchment in turkey output also is planned.

Milk production this year will achieve the record level of 123-000,000,000 pounds. Dairy officials consider this too high for peacetime demand. If present plans to withdraw dairy subsidies by next summer are carried out, output will drop at least 5,000,000,000 pounds, they said.

Goals for the nation's biggest crop, corn, will be set at about 95-000,000 acres, or near the level of 1945 plantings.

Sharp slashes are planned for acreages of the important oil-bearing crops, which were expanded tremendously during the war to make up for the loss of imports from the Pacific.

The goals may recommend a drop of 400,000 acres or 12 per cent below the 1945 acreage of 3-240,000.

The department now plans to ask farmers to cut the 1945 soybean seedling of 10,500,000 acres, by 1,000,000 acres. However, it also is thinking of removing the 30-cent-a-bushel subsidy, which would ewest a 2,500,000 acre reduction.

The 1945 flaxseed acreage of 4-200,000 acres may be dropped to 3,000,000.

The potato acreage will be set at 2,900,000 acres compared with 2-900,000 this year. However, producers of Spring potatoes have been asked to cut their output by 14 per cent.

Sights for sugar beet production will continue high. The goal probably will be set at between 900-000 and 1,000,000 acres, compared with 780,000 planted this year.

Farmers this year planted only 18,500 acres in cotton, or the fewest in 60 years. The 1946 goals, consequently, may call for an expansion of 5,000,000 acres.

Some expansion is planned in pasture and cover crops which will rebuild soil depleted by intensive wartime production.

Indicative of the department's middle-of-the-road thinking are two important goals already announced. The suggested wheat plantings of 68,750,000 acres and a Spring pig crop of 52,000,000 head would bring production at the same level as in 1945.

Almost every kind of weapon in use by armed forces of the United States at the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor had been changed by the time the fighting ended.

uities. The Communists attacked with 64 regiments, he said.

50,000 Attack Junction

More than 50,000 Communists now were attacking the government-held railway junction of Tating in northern Shansi, Yen said, but his forces were holding firm.

Yen said the Communists had added 13 districts of Shansi since Japan's surrender to the 17 they held previously. Seventy-five districts remained in Yen's hands.

Yen, in Chungking to report to Chiang for the first time in eight years, said his troops were fighting only in self defense.

Northwest of Shansi, central government forces reported they had abandoned the communications centers of Fencheng and Tancheng in the Inner Mongolian province of Suiyuan in the face of a general offensive by 100,000 Communist troops.

Headquarters of Gen. Fu Tso Yi, commander of the 12th zone, reported that he ordered the abandonment of the cities "voluntarily, to preserve the peace."

Offensive Follows Talks Fu charged that the Communists launched their offensive against Fencheng and Tancheng only one week after the Communist leader Mao Tse Tung returned to his headquarters in Yenmen from preliminary talks with Chiang at Chungking.

The civil war in Suiyuan actually began Aug. 11, however, when Communists captured Tieshuho after killing 200 of Fu's men in battle, his headquarters said.

The New China Daily sought to throw blame for fighting in Suiyuan on Fu. The Communist newspaper said government forces fired the first shots and "determined to annihilate the eighth army, already have annihilated 1,500 of us."

Dikes Blown Up

The central news agency, organ of the central government, said that Communist forces in the central province of Honan had blown up dikes along the Yellow river. Resulting floods have left 1,700-000 persons homeless, the agency said.

Some Diplomats Believe President's Speech May Raise U. S.-Red Tension

tion to the United Nations education, scientific and cultural, conference will leave for London soon to help set up an organization for stimulating greater exchange of knowledge among peoples. The delegates will be in the uncomfortable position of urging greater exchange of scientific information while their own country keeps secret the most important developments of centuries.

Eastern Europe—Mr. Truman acknowledged "the legitimate urge toward security as they see it" of other countries, but pledged the U. S. not to recognize governments imposed by the force of a foreign power. The Russians claim that eastern Europe must be in the hands of "friendly" governments for Soviet security. The U. S. objects to many of the "friendly" Soviet-sponsored governments and is withholding recognition.

Opposes 'Interference'

Western Hemisphere—Mr. Truman made it plain that the U. S. is going to play a major role all over the world. But he ruled out "outside interference" in the western hemisphere. This could conflict with the new United Nations mandate to prevent threats to the peace anywhere in the world.

Dependent peoples—The U. S. favors independence for all peoples ready for it. But it is now confronted with a tremendous ground swell among the peoples of Asia against a return to colonial status. The U. S. will have to apply its principle soon to the Dutch-Indonesian dispute, the Indo-Chinese demand for autonomy from France, the ever present Burmese and Indian problems, and, by next July 4, its own Philippine islands.

Equal Rights Up

Equal navigation rights—The U. S. wants such rights for all nations on waterways "which pass through more than one country"—the Rhine and Danube rivers in Europe, for example. But by its definition it excludes from the principle such important waterways as the Dardanelles (in which Russia wants a larger interest), and the Suez and Panama canals all of which pass through only one country. Britain's vessels are going around South Africa now rather than pay Panama Canal tolls.

World organization—Some diplomats thought the President should have given the United Nations organization greater emphasis. He listed it only as one of his 12 points while British officials during the last week have been declaring it to be their first line of defense. Mr. Truman left no doubt that he does not—that his first line of defense will be "the greatest naval power on earth," one of the most powerful air forces in the world, his proposed universal training for a military reserve, and the atomic bomb.

BING CROSBY TO QUIT RACING FOR BASEBALL POST

PASADENA, Calif., Oct. 29—Crooner Bing Crosby will retire from racing and become affiliated with a major baseball club, Sports Editor Rube Samuelson reported today.

Samuelson, in the Pasadena Star-News, said Crosby "is selling or has already sold" his controlling interest in the Del Mar, Calif. race track and was planning to buy an interest in an unidentified big league ball club.

"Showing less and less enthusiasm for racing since his return from a European USO trip a year ago," according to Samuelson, Crosby has decided to wash his hands completely of thoroughbred racing by also selling the personal stable which had produced a flood of "last horse" gags.

MERGER FORCES RACE TO MAKE REPORTS PUBLIC

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—Debate over the proposed Army-Navy merger took on a new form in the senate today—a race to opposite sides to get out voluminous reports supporting their views.

The anti-merger forces got in the first lick.

Chairman David I. Walsh, D., Mass., of the senate naval affairs committee made public a 414-page Navy department study opposing suggestions that the Army and Navy be put in a single department of national defense. Walsh, supporting the official Navy view, said unification should not even be considered until the armed forces get back on a peacetime basis.

Meanwhile, acting chairman Edwin C. Johnson, D., Colo., of the senate military affairs committee who wants a merger, still was trying to release a joint Army-Navy report which is understood to favor unification.

The Army-Navy report is now at the White House, but Johnson plans to make it public as soon as he can get copies. He has been waiting for a week.

UPSETS ALTER GRID RATINGS

Army Holds First; Irish Replace Purdue In Second Place

BY PAT TAYLOR

Saturday's "comedy of upsets" left everyone gaping, causing freakish things to happen to the national football ratings this week.

Ohio State, although defeating fifth place Minnesota, dropped from ninth to tenth place, as a result of other surprises shown by Big Ten teams.

The nation's list of undefeated teams shriveled almost halfway with only Army, Navy, Notre Dame, Indiana, Alabama, Oklahoma A. & M., Columbia and Mississippi State left as unbeaten major teams while Purdue, Penn. State, Minnesota, and Texas lost their first games and Southern California dropped its first contest against college competition—all losses, except the narrow defeat of Penn coming under the heading of upsets.

Ohio's drop, although winning against an unbeaten team, is easily explained by studying comparative scores. It's all as simple as this: Indiana, winner over Michigan, is the only Big Ten team left undefeated. Michigan crushed Northwestern, Purdue was swamped by Northwestern, Purdue buried Ohio State, and Minnesota fell to Ohio State. The Big Ten rating thus goes in the following order: Indiana, Michigan, Northwestern, Purdue, Ohio State, Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa.

Tulsa took a freakish jump in the ratings, although losing to Indiana. At the moment, Indiana has the best team in the Big Ten. Thus Tulsa is due a lot of credit in holding high the prestige of Southwest football in losing to Indiana only 7-2. In keeping with Indiana's jump from eighth to fourth place, Tulsa jumps from thirteenth to sixth place.

Purdue fell further down from a higher place in losing to Northwestern, dropping to ninth place, one digit above Ohio State, which it had defeated, while Northwestern rose to eighth place on the strength of the victory over Purdue and Minnesota fell way down to fifteenth place by virtue of falling to State.

It is impossible for this rating system or any system to account for such upsets as occurred Saturday. The ratings represent how the teams rate this week and who will be favored in next Saturday's games, and no more, certainly not who will win next week's games, but only who will win them, barring upsets—which are extremely common in tight football conferences.

The most surprising upset of the week was Texas' loss to Rice by one point. Texas was heavily-favored to win, but as in the Big Ten, little teams have a way of sidetracking undefeated seasons by winning in grudge battles. Texas dropped from seventh to fourteenth place as a result of its loss, but still should spring back to win the conference title and play in the Cotton Bowl, judging by its convincing wins before the Rice debacle.

Notre Dame in smashing Iowa 56-0, showed that it could no longer be held under a Navy team which had a hard time squeezing out Penn. and the Irish move up ahead of Navy. Navy did not drop, however, as Notre Dame merely replaced Purdue in the second place spot and Navy remained in third place. The two teams will meet Saturday to battle for the second place spot and on the basis of comparative scores, this column is predicting that Notre Dame will win in what should be the best game of the day.

Either team that wins this game, however, must face Army, and it is our conviction that no one is going to steal first place from Army. Alabama with a convincing win over Georgia continued its march towards the Rose Bowl, but may expect some competition for this honor from still-unbeaten Holy Cross and Columbia. And both Tulsa and Oklahoma A. & M. are not to be left out when consideration of teams for big bowl bids begins.

Southern California's 13-7 loss to Washington was another major upset of the day, the major result being to throw the Pacific Coast Conference Rose Bowl race into a muddle from which any of several teams may emerge as champion.

FIRST TEN—Army, Notre Dame, Navy, Indiana, Alabama, Tulsa, Michigan, Northwestern, Purdue and Ohio State.

SECOND TEN—Oklahoma A. & M., Penn. St., Mary's, Texas, Minnesota, Holy Cross, Columbia, Mississippi State, Washington and L. S. U.

THIRD TEN—Illinois, Southern California, Virginia, Wisconsin, Temple, T. C. U., Duke, Georgia Tech, Oregon and Texas A. & M.

BEEF SUBSIDY TO BE PAID TO CATTLE RAISERS

John A. Boggs, chairman of the Pickaway AAA Committee advises all beef growers or feeders who have sold animals that weigh 800 pounds or more and they brought $14.55 per 100 pounds, if sold in Ohio, are entitled to receive a subsidy of 50c a hundred pounds, live weight.

Mr. Boggs says, to secure this subsidy, it is necessary for the subsidy to make application for the subsidy at the Pickaway County AAA office and they must make application within 60 days of the date they sell their cattle.

It is extremely important, warns Mr. Boggs, that they remember that the application must be made within 60 days of the date the cattle are sold because, after the 60 day period is up, the animals are no longer eligible for the subsidy.

When application is made for the subsidy it will be necessary to have the sales slips showing the number of head, the weight, the price received and it is necessary also that the name of the slaughterer of the cattle be known or that the buyer write on the sales slip that the cattle will be delivered to a slaughterer for slaughter within 29 days of the date of the sale.

BEEF SUBSIDY TO BE PAID TO CATTLE RAISERS

John A. Boggs, chairman of the Pickaway AAA Committee advises all beef growers or feeders who have sold animals that weigh 800 pounds or more and they brought $14.55 per 100 pounds, if sold in Ohio, are entitled to receive a subsidy of 50c a hundred pounds, live weight.

Mr. Boggs says, to secure this subsidy, it is necessary for them to make application for the subsidy at the Pickaway County AAA office and they must make application within 60 days of the date they sell their cattle.

It is extremely important, warns Mr. Boggs, that they remember that the application must be made within 60 days of the date the cattle are sold because, after the 60 day period is up, the animals are no longer eligible for the subsidy.

When application is made for the subsidy it will be necessary to have the sales slips showing the number of head, the weight, the price received and it is necessary also that the name of the slaughterer of the cattle be known or that the buyer write on the sales slip that the cattle will be delivered to a slaughterer for slaughter within 29 days of the date of the sale.

VERY clever, these Chinese! This old byword has another proof, now that a Chinese woman has figured out a way to get a new textile fiber from ramie, the so-called China grass. Ramie has long been used to make fish-nets because it is strong and unaffected by moisture, and as fine as flax. Dr. Ruth Feng of Chungking, a graduate of Ohio State University and of the German textile industry, has worked out a process for utilizing ramie. As it is six times stronger than silk and eight stronger than cotton, it would be wonderful for shirts or sheets which get a lot of wear.

China's 450,000,000 people could use a new textile fiber which would be cheaper and better than those already known. The coming of peace should show the world how ramie will work out in a large scale production.

Rzymowski Visit Called For Delicate Handling

Franco Government Seen
Becoming More Liberal

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The United States had to steer a narrow diplomatic course during the recent visit of Polish Foreign Minister Wincenty Rzymowski. He was in the peculiar position of being a White House guest without ever seeing President Truman.

An official guest of this country, he stayed at Blair-Lee House, official White House visitors' cottage across the street from the executive mansion. Ordinarily, he would have at least conferred with the president, but . . .

Back of the situation lies the fact that Rzymowski represents only the Polish provisional government, created as a result of a compromise with the Soviet Union. That provisional government is "on probation" until establishment of a freely-elected one next year.

To have been received at the White House might have been interpreted in Poland as indicating United States approval of his present regime. It might also have set a precedent for future visits from the foreign ministers of the still-suspect provisional "democratic" Balkan governments. Undoubtedly it would have stirred up violent protest from politically-strong Polish-American elements who disapprove of the present Polish regime.

DIPLOMATIC OBSERVERS look for the Spanish government of Generalissimo Francisco Franco to continue its shift toward center, with possible restoration of the monarchy in view. The transition is expected to be gradual, and no sudden uprising against Franco is expected. The generalissimo is reported anxious

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—Want to hop up on my typewriter today for a ride through the wondrous labyrinths of economic fiction of the administration's price-wage dilemma?

It was a scenic trip, but as on the roller coaster, the scenery is considerably faked and most of the trip is in darkness. There is no extra charge, as you bought the paper. On your left you see OPA Administrator Bowles telling congress he must have authority to keep down the prices of new houses and real estate to prevent gouging.

He also says his OPA will have to be continued beyond next July 1, so great is the pressure for price increases and inflation. Just beyond there in the dark corner are Mr. Truman's economic advisers, telling him the opposite, namely wages can be increased materially without increasing prices, you cannot see them, you may only hear what is leaked to the press about what they say.

I can imagine if Bowles heard them he would assert he had already squeezed the differentials of profits to the limit through OPA, by freezing prices while other branches of the administration were permitting unprecedented wage increases by devices such as portal-to-portal, regrading, and what-not.

Interesting ride? You have seen nothing yet, and I mean that literally.

On the right is Reconversion Director Snyder telling congress exactly that. He says the administration has no program for putting a price ceiling on housing, and would not accept such a course unless assured that such restrictions would not interfere with the anticipated building boom.

Beyond him in the background, you see strikes in the lumber industry, the most important of all building materials, based upon demands for a 30 percent wage increase.

That animated black statue there in the darkness on the extreme left is CIO's Sidney Hillman, and the blackrobed figures behind him are the hired union economists thinking up reasons for 30 percent wage increases. Notice, just then, how Hillman turned around for a moment. He probably was just being notified one strike has been called off, and issued orders to start another one somewhere, to keep things going.

Those young men in the bright light yonder are the newspaper men. Their agitation is due to their confusion as to how to report the anonymously leaked news from the Truman economists. The one in the phone booth has decided the news means a 24 percent wage increase is justified without an increase in prices, but those older, more experienced fellows in the background are pointing out the hedging done by the advisers and realizing the recommendations do not mean anything at all.

The economists had figured that if you deduct taxes from business profits now, the difference could go to wage increases. They did not stop to think that war production was entirely different from peacetime in volume, costs, etc.

You know production costs and prices primarily depend on volume (remember how mass production cheapened articles,) and peacetime costs will involve many other factors including salesmanship, advertising, etc.

In war, the factories had only one customer, the government, and he fixed the price as well as the profits.

A Common Type of Tumor

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the most common disturbances of women is the development of fibroid tumors of the womb. These tumors are made up of muscle tissue and fibrous or connective tissue. The exact cause of these tumors is not definitely known. They may occur in persons who are as young as twenty, or in those past seventy.

The average age in a group of women studied by Doctor John D. Peake of Mobile was forty-two years, and the average number of children born to these women was three. It would appear that the disorder is more likely to occur in women who have had no children.

Irregular Bleeding

The most constant symptom of these tumors is irregular bleeding. The symptoms may begin with an increase in the length of the normal menstrual period, and finally the periods may last for more than two weeks. The regularity of the periods may be lost. The bleeding may be relieved by rest in bed and made worse by physical exertion.

Often anemia, or lessening of the coloring in the blood, develops. If the tumor becomes large enough, of course, it may press on surrounding organs and produce difficulties. Pain is rarely present in women with this difficulty.

As a rule, it is not difficult to make a diagnosis of a fibroid tumor of the womb or uterus. A careful examination by the doctor usually will indicate whether or not such a tumor is present.

There are two satisfactory ways of treating fibroids. One method is by surgery and the other by the use of the X-ray. In younger patients, X-ray treatments as a rule are not satisfactory, since such treatments may lead to inability to have children.

In some instances there may be disorders present which make surgery impossible, such as thyroid disease or heart disease. In these instances the X-ray treatment may be utilized.

Patients Studied

Of 300 patients studied, 290 were treated with X-ray or radium. In some instances both methods were employed. In only two cases the bleeding failed to be relieved by this treatment.

In three instances pain continued after the bleeding stopped. In two patients in whom the X-ray treatments did not control the condition, surgery was carried out. Once a diagnosis of fibroid tumor has been made, the doctor will decide which method of treatment will be the most successful.

LEAD THROUGH ANYWAY

WHEN YOU know the defender at your right has one or more guarded trump honors, your natural desire is to lead trumps through him often enough to reduce the value of his cards to the absolute minimum. But suppose you haven't enough trumps in the dummy? What then? The best procedure is to try to play so you may lead some other suit through him at the crucial trick or tricks, so the defender must play before you.

♠ Q 5 4
♥ Q J 8 4
♦ 7 5
♣ J 7 2

♠ K 10 8 3
♥ K 6 2

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

	West	North	East
South	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
3 ♠	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

When South played low from dummy on the spade 6 lead, East put in the 8 and the 9 won. With no idea yet how trumps were divided, the declarer finessed the heart 10 to the K, whereupon East scored the diamond A and returned the 4. South got that with the K, ruffed the diamond J with the spade Q and then led the spade 5 to the A. Shocked by West's discard of a club, he could now think of better ways to have used those early trumps. But, more profitable, he found a way to play the rest of the tricks successfully.

After using the club J for a dummy entry, South called out the heart A and discarded the club A on it. Next he used the heart Q for a discard of the club K. Some fun, discarding both an ace and a king! Then he led the heart J from dummy. East put a stop to the discarding by ruffing with his spade 10, leaving him only one more trump. The K South overruffed the spade 10 with the J, then scored the club Q, on which East decided to discard. The spade 2 was then to the K and the 2 was 7 ruffed the final trick.

From the tenth trick on, side suit leads through East were just as effective as trump leads would have been, if East had discarded until he had to ruff.

What is the soundest way to play at 4-Spades on this deal after West leads the diamond 6?

SYNOPSIS

Old Mr. Treves, the famed criminologist, had long retired from active practice, but his views on the subject of murder were still highly respected. In his opinion, the "dark deed" really began long before the actual crime was committed. Here, then, are the causes and events that brought certain people to a certain crime on a certain day . . .

On January 11th, Angus MacWhirter lay dying on a hospital bed following an unsuccessful attempt at suicide. MacWhirter's wife had left him when he lost his job, and he had hoped to find in the sea when he jumped from the cliff, but his boat had caught on the rocks and he had been rescued. MacWhirter's reason for suicide was . . .

In February, a lone figure sat at a typewriter, dictating a letter to a newspaper. The letter traced a date in the past to a time when, in the month of March, a woman named . . .

MacWhirter's wife had left him when he lost his job, and he had hoped to find in the sea when he jumped from the cliff, but his boat had caught on the rocks and he had been rescued. MacWhirter's reason for suicide was . . .

CHAPTER FIVE

"IT'S NOT a question of playing up," Neville said angrily. "Camilla has no control over the money. Sir Matthew left it in trust for her during her lifetime and to come to me and my wife afterwards. It's a question of affection. Why can't you understand that?"

Kay said, after a moment's pause: "I do understand really. I'm just putting on an act because . . . well, because I know I'm only allowed there on sufferance, as it were. They hate me! Yes, they do! Lady Trevelian looks down that long nose of hers at me and Mary Aldin looks over my shoulder when she talks to me. It's all very well for you. You don't see what goes on."

"They always seem to me very polite to you. You know quite well I wouldn't stand for it if they weren't."

Kay gave him a curious look from under her dark lashes. "They're polite enough. But they know how to get under my skin all right. I'm the interloper, that's what they feel."

"Well," said Neville, "after all, I suppose—that's natural enough, isn't it?"

His voice had changed slightly. He got up and stood looking out at the view with his back to Kay.

"Oh, yes, I dare say it's natural. They were devoted to Audrey, weren't they?" Her voice shook a little. "Dear, well-bred, cool, colorless Audrey! Camilla's not forgiven me for taking her place."

Neville did not turn. His voice was lifeless, dull. He said: "After all, Camilla's old—past 70. Her generation doesn't really like divorce, you know. On the whole, I think she's accepted the position very well considering how fond she was of Audrey."

His voice changed just a little as he spoke the name.

"They think you treated her badly."

"So I did," said Neville under his breath, but his wife heard.

"Oh, Neville—don't be so stupid. Just because she chose to make such a frightful fuss."

"She didn't make a fuss. Audrey never made fusses."

"Well, you know what I mean. Because she went away and was ill, and went about everywhere looking broken-hearted. That's what I call a fuss! Audrey's not what I call a good loser. From my point of view if a wife can't hold her husband she ought to give him up gracefully! You two had nothing in common. She never played a game and was as anemic and washed up as—as a dishrag. No life or go in her! If she really cared about you, she ought to have thought about your happiness first and been glad you were going to be happy with someone more suited to you."

Neville turned. A faintly sardonic smile played around his lips. "What a little sportsman! How to play the game in love and matrimony!"

Kay laughed and reddened. "Well, perhaps I was going a bit far. But at any rate once the thing had happened, there it was. You've got to accept these things!"

Neville said quietly: "Audrey accepted it. She divorced me so that you and I could marry."

"Yes, I know—" Kay hesitated.

Neville said: "You've never understood Audrey."

"No, I haven't. In a way, Audrey gives me the creeps. I don't know what it is about her. You never know what she's thinking. . . . She's—she's a little frightening."

"Oh! nonsense, Kay."

"Well, she frightens me. Perhaps it's because she's got brains."

"My lovely nit wit!" Kay laughed.

"You always call me that!"

"Because it's what you are!" They smiled at each other. Neville came over to her and, bending down, kissed the back of her neck. "Lovely, lovely Kay," he murmured.

"Very good Kay," said Kay. "Giving up a lovely yachting trip to go and be snubbed by her husband's prim Victorian relations."

Neville went back and sat down by the table.

"You know," he said, "I don't see why we shouldn't go on that trip with Shirley if you really want to so much."

Kay sat up in astonishment. "And what about Saltcreek and Gull's Point?"

Neville said in a rather unnatural voice: "I don't see why we shouldn't go there early in September."

"Oh, but, Neville, surely—" She stopped.

"We can't go in July and August because of the tournaments," said Neville. "But we finish up at St. Loo the last week in August and it would fit in very well if we went on to Saltcreek from there."

"Oh, it would fit all right—beautifully. But I thought—well, SHE always goes there for September, doesn't she?"

"Audrey, you mean?"

"Yes, I suppose they could put her off, but—"

"Why should they put her off?" Kay stared at him dubiously.

"You mean what's there at the same time? What an extraordinary idea!"

Neville said irritably: "I don't think it's at all an extraordinary idea. Lots of people do it nowadays. Why shouldn't we all be friends together? It makes things so much simpler. Why, you said so yourself only the other day."

"I did?"

"Yes! Don't you remember? We were talking about the Howes, and you said it was the sensible civilized way to look at things, and that Leonard's new wife and his ex were the best of friends."

"Oh, I wouldn't mind. I do think it's sensible. But—well—I don't think Audrey would feel like that about it."

"Nonsense."

"It isn't nonsense. You know, Neville, Audrey really was terribly fond of you. . . . I don't think she'd stand it for a moment."

"You're quite wrong, Kay. Audrey thinks it would be quite a good thing."

"Audrey—what do you mean, Audrey thinks? How do you know what Audrey thinks?"

Neville looked slightly embarrassed. He cleared his throat a little self-consciously.

"As a matter of fact, I happened to run into her yesterday when I was up in London."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

"You never told me."

Neville said irritably:

"I'm telling you now. It was absolute chance. I was walking across the park and there she was coming towards me. You wouldn't want me to run away from her would you?"

"No, of course not," said Kay, smiling. "Go on."

"Of course, then, we stopped, of course, and then I turned around and walked with her. I—I felt it was the least I could do."

"Go on," said Kay.

"And then we sat down on a couple of chairs and talked. She was very nice—very nice, indeed."

"Delightful for you," said Kay.

"And we got to talking, you know, about one thing and another. . . . She was quite natural and normal—and—and all that."

"Remarkable!" said Kay.

"And she asked how you were—"

"Very kind of her!"

"And we talked about you for a bit. Really, Kay, she couldn't have been nicer."

"Darling Audrey!"

"And then it sort of came to me—you know—how nice it would be if—if you two could be friends—if we could all get together. And it occurred to me that perhaps we might manage it at Gull's Point this summer. Sort of place it could happen naturally."

"YOU thought of that?"

"I—well—yes, of course. It was all my idea."

"You've never said anything to me about having any such idea."

"Well, I only happened to think of it just then."

"I see. Anyway, you suggested it

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—Want to hop up on my typewriter today for a ride through the wondrous labyrinths of economic fiction of the administration's price-wage dilemma?

It was a scenic trip, but as on the roller coaster, the scenery is considerably faked and most of the trip is in darkness. There is no extra charge, as you bought the paper.

On your left you see OPA Administrator Bowles telling congress he must have authority to keep down the prices of new houses and real estate to prevent gouging. He also says his OPA will have to be continued beyond next July 1, so great is the pressure for price increases and inflation. Just beyond there in the dark corner are Mr. Truman's economic advisers, telling him the opposite, namely wages can be increased materially without increasing prices, you cannot see them, you may only hear what is leaked to the press about what they say.

I can imagine if Bowles heard them he would assert he had already squeezed the differentials of profits to the limit through OPA, by freezing prices while other branches of the administration were permitting unprecedented wage increases by devices such as portal-to-portal, regrading, and what-not.

Interesting ride? You have seen nothing yet, and I mean that literally.

On the right is Reconversion Director Snyder telling congress exactly that. He says the administration has no program for putting a price ceiling on housing, and would not accept such a course unless assured that such restrictions would not interfere with the anticipated building boom.

Beyond him in the background, you see strikes in the lumber industry, the most important of all building materials, based upon demands for a 30 percent wage increase.

That animated black statue there in the darkness on the extreme left is CIO's Sidney Hillman, and the blackrobed figures behind him are the hired union economists thinking up reasons for 30 percent wage increases. Notice, just then, how Hillman turned around for a moment. He probably was just being notified one strike has been called off, and issued orders to start another one somewhere, to keep things going.

Those young men in the bright light yonder are the newspaper men. Their agitation is due to their confusion as to how to report the anonymously leaked news from the Truman economists. The one in the phone booth has decided the news means a 24 percent wage increase is justified without an increase in prices, but those older, more experienced fellows in the background are pointing out the hedging done by the advisers and realizing the recommendations do not mean anything at all.

The economists had figured that if you deduct taxes from business profits now, the difference could go to wage increases. They did not stop to think that war production was entirely different from peacetime in volume, costs, etc.

You know production costs and prices primarily depend on volume (remember how mass production cheapened articles,) and peacetime costs will involve many other factors including salesmanship, advertising, etc.

In war, the factories had only one customer, the government, and he fixed the price as well as the profits.

A Common Type of Tumor

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the most common disturbances of women is the development of fibroid tumors of the womb. These tumors are made up of muscle tissue and fibrous or connective tissue. The exact cause of these tumors is not definitely known. They may occur in persons who are as young as twenty, or in those past seventy.

The average age in a group of women studied by Doctor John D. Peake of Mobile was forty-two years, and the average number of children born to these women was three. It would appear that the disorder is more likely to occur in women who have had no children.

Irregular Bleeding

The most constant symptom of these tumors is irregular bleeding. The symptoms may begin with an increase in the length of the normal menstrual period, and finally the periods may last for from two days to two weeks. The regularity of the periods may be lost. The bleeding may be relieved by rest in bed and made worse by physical exertion.

Often anemia, or lessening of the coloring in the blood, develops. If the tumor becomes large enough, of course, it may press on surrounding organs and produce difficulties. Pain is rarely present in women with this difficulty.

As a rule, it is not difficult to make a diagnosis of a fibroid tumor of the womb or uterus. A careful examination by the doctor usually will indicate whether or not such a tumor is present.

There are two satisfactory ways of treating fibroids. One method is by surgery and the other by the use of the X-ray. In younger patients, X-ray treatments as a rule are not satisfactory, since such treatments may lead to inability to have children.

In some instances there may be disorders present which make surgery impossible, such as thyroid disease or heart disease. In these instances the X-ray treatment may be utilized.

Patients Studied

Of 300 patients studied, 290 were treated with X-ray or radium. In some instances both methods were employed. In only two cases the bleeding failed to be relieved by this treatment.

In three instances pain continued after the bleeding stopped. In two patients in whom the X-ray treatments did not control the condition, surgery was carried out. Once a diagnosis of fibroid tumor has been made, the doctor will decide which method of treatment will be the most successful.

LEAD THROUGH ANYWAY

WHEN YOU know the defender at your right has one or more guarded trump honors, your natural desire is to lead trumps through him often enough to reduce the value of his cards to the absolute minimum. But suppose you haven't enough trumps in the dummy? What then? The best procedure is to try to play so you may lead some other suit through him at the crucial trick or tricks, so the defender must play before you.

When South played low from dummy on the spade 6 lead, East put in the 8 and the 9 won. With no idea yet how trumps were divided, the declarer finessed the heart 10 to the K, whereupon East scored the diamond A and returned the 4. South got that with the K, ruffed the diamond J with the spade Q and then led the spade 5 to the A. Shocked by West's discard of a club, he could now think of better ways to have used those early trumps. But, more profitable, he found a way to play the rest of the tricks successfully.

After using the club J for a dummy entry, South called out the heart A and discarded the club A on it. Next he used the heart Q for a discard of the club K. Some fun, discarding both an ace and a king! Then he led the heart J from dummy. East put a stop to the discarding by ruffing with his spade 10, leaving him only one more trump. The K South over-ruffed the spade 10 with the J, then scored the club Q, on which East decided to discard. The spade 2 was led then to the K and the spade 7 ruffed the final trick.

From the tenth trick on, side suit leads through East were just as effective as trump leads would have been, if East had discarded until he had to ruff.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a fairly fortunate one, with all affairs moving in routine channels, with modest progress. There may be trivial setbacks or annoyances and be careful in making contracts or agreements, as these are beset with danger or fraud, misrepresentation or misconception. Industry and practical methods should carry on successfully.

Those whose birthday it is may look for returns for hard work and practical constructive efforts. These may offset trifling delays or annoyances. Give close attention to the signing of all papers, agreements or correspondence, as such are subject to fraud. SYNOPSIS
Old Mr. Treves, the famed criminologist, had long ago retired from active practice, but his views on the subject of murder were still highly respected. In his opinion, the "dark deed" really began long before the actual crime was committed. Here, then, are the causes and events that branch outwards from a certain place on a certain day.
On January 11th, Anne MacWhirter lay face down on a hospital cot following an unexplained attempt at suicide. MacWhirter's wife had left him when he lost his job, and he had been in the hospital for some time. The police had been called in to see when he had been found lying on the floor of a room. The police had found a letter in his pocket which had been addressed to a certain person. The letter had been written on a certain day.
In February, a lone figure sat at a table in a small hotel, waiting for a certain person. The figure was a man, and he was waiting for a woman. The woman had been seen in the hotel on a certain day. The man had been waiting for her for some time. The woman had been seen in the hotel on a certain day. The man had been waiting for her for some time. The woman had been seen in the hotel on a certain day. The man had been waiting for her for some time.

CHAPTER FIVE
"IT'S NOT a question of playing up," Neville said anxiously. "Camilla has no control over the money. Sir Matthew left it in trust for her during her lifetime and to come to me and my wife afterwards. It's a question of affection. Why can't you understand that?"
Kay said, after a moment's pause: "I do understand really. I'm just putting on an act because—well, because I know I'm only allowed there on sufferance, as it were. They hate me! Yes, they do! Lady Trevelian looks down that long nose of hers at me and Mary Aldin looks over my shoulder when she talks to me. It's all very well for you. You don't see what goes on."

"They always seem to me very polite to you. You know quite well I wouldn't stand for it if they weren't."
Kay gave him a curious look from under her dark lashes. "They're polite enough. But they know how to get under my skin all right. I'm the interloper, that's what they feel."

"Well," said Neville, "after all, I suppose—that's natural enough, isn't it?"
His voice had changed slightly. He got up and stood looking out at the view with his back to Kay.

"Oh, yes I dare say it's natural. They were devoted to Audrey, weren't they? Her voice shook a little. 'Dear, well-bred, cool, colorless Audrey! Camilla's not forgiven me for taking her place.'"

Neville did not turn. His voice was lifeless, dull. He said: "After all, Camilla's old—past 70. Her generation doesn't really like divorce, you know. On the whole, I think she's accepted the position very well considering how fond she was of—of Audrey."

His voice changed just a little as he spoke the name.
"They think you treated her badly." "So I did," said Neville under his breath, but his wife heard.

"Oh, Neville—don't be so stupid. Just because she chose to make such a frightful fuss."
"She didn't make a fuss. Audrey never made a fuss."

"Well you know what I mean. Because she went away and was ill, and went about everywhere looking broken hearted. That's what I call a fuss! Audrey's not what I call a good loser. From my point of view if a wife can't hold her husband she ought to give him up gracefully! You two had nothing in common. She never played a game and was as anemic and washed up as a dishrag. No life or go in her! If she really cared about you, she ought to have thought about your happiness first and been glad you

Rzymowski Visit Called For Delicate Handling

Franco Government Seen Becoming More Liberal

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The United States had to steer a narrow diplomatic course during the recent visit of Polish Foreign Minister Wincenty Rzymowski. He was in the peculiar position of being a White House guest without ever seeing President Truman.

An official guest of this country, he stayed at Blair-Lee House, official White House visitors' cottage across the street from the executive mansion. Ordinarily, he would have at least conferred with the president, but . . .

Back of the situation lies the fact that Rzymowski represents only the Polish provisional government, created as a result of a compromise with the Soviet Union. That provisional government is "on probation" until establishment of a freely-elected one next year.

To have been received at the White House might have been interpreted in Poland as indicating United States approval of his present regime. It might also have set a precedent for future visits from the foreign ministers of the still-suspicious provisional "democratic" Balkan governments. Undoubtedly it would have stirred up violent protest from politically-strong Polish-American elements who disapprove of the present Polish regime.

● DIPLOMATIC OBSERVERS look for the Spanish government of Generalissimo Francisco Franco to continue its shift toward center, with possible restoration of the monarchy in view. The transition is expected to be gradual, and no sudden uprising against Franco is expected. The generalissimo is reported anxious to ease himself more and more into the background and to turn over the reins of the Madrid government to other hands.

Franco is desirous of letting the world forget that he won the civil war almost a decade ago with the intervention of the late Duce Benito Mussolini and Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, these observers believe.

The Falangists are still the strongest power behind Franco, controlling the army. The army is loyal to Franco because it is now better-uniformed, armed and fed than at any time in its history.

● IN THE DAYS WHEN VAUDEVILLE was in its glory, there was a popular star whose best laugh line was, "Everyone wants to get into the act." He used it often to squash hecklers and turn the laugh upon them whenever his lines were interrupted.

That vaudeville star might well use his favorite gag at congressional hearings on the atomic bomb. Everybody and his brother have been coming forward to say what must be done with the great force of nature unleashed for the first time at Alamogordo, N. M., and thereafter over Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan.

Ever Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes has entered the atomic drama, along with Maury Maverick, chief of the smaller war plants corporation.

They specialized in condemning scientists who have opposed the presence of government officials on the board of the proposed national scientific foundation for research in the atomic era. Many others testified, hour after hour.

The old vaudeville slogan still holds true: "Everybody wants to get into the act."

● MOUNT SURIBACHI ON IWO JIMA, familiar to millions of Americans, has undergone a facial treatment, according to Undersecretary of the Navy Artemus Gates.

"It does not resemble the spot that a great many people have seen," Gates says. "They have unfortunately cut down Mt. Suribachi a bit." There is a move underway in Congress to make the historic battle island a national monument, with approval of Secretary of Navy James Forrestal who "would like to see it done."

Miss Jane Ferguson
Norbert Kelly Are Wed

Pherson Church Is
Scene Of Wedding Ceremony

Sentiment marked the ceremony that united in marriage Miss Jane Ferguson and Norbert L. Kelly, Jr. Sunday afternoon in the little Methodist church at Pherson which had been founded by her grandfather the late I. A. McPherson.

Miss Ferguson who is the daughter of R. E. and the late Mrs. Ferguson, Bucyrus, came from her home to be married in the church which her mother had attended as a girl and the ceremony marked the first time a wedding had been performed there.

For the occasion the chancel of the church had been banked with ferns and baskets of white chrysanthemums. Tall cathedral candles cast a glow over the party as the Rev. G. C. Reed, pastor of the Methodist church of Mt. Sterling read the double ring service.

Mrs. R. W. Ferguson, sister-in-law of the bride acted as matron of honor and Mrs. Paul Kennedy was the bride's other attendant. Robert W. Ferguson, brother of the bride acted as best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Harmon Bach, a cousin of the bride served as usher.

For her wedding Miss Ferguson chose a white chiffon floor length gown with low fitted waistline, bracelet length sleeves and full flowing skirt. Her veil which was also of chiffon fell from a white feathered calotte trimmed in white velvet. A fire opal pendant, a gift of the bridegroom and brought from Cairo Egypt was her only jewel. Her flowers were white mums in a cascade bouquet.

Dresses for the bride's attendants were made alike, tunic style, floor length with drop shoulder sleeves. Mrs. Ferguson's was in Chinese fuchsia and Mrs. Kennedy's in turquoise. Matching gloves and hats with shoulder length veils were worn and they carried arm bouquets of rose colored chrysanthemums. Gold choker necklaces worn by them were gifts from the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McPherson, the bride's uncle and aunt.

The wedding party greeted their guests in front of the chrysanthemum banked fireplace. Mrs. Robert Ewing, Bucyrus, cousin of the bride dressed in a flowered purple gown with matching hat played a selection of wedding music during the reception. Assisting the bride in receiving her guests, her aunt, Mrs. McPherson wore a purple crepe dress trimmed in velvet with a white hat. Her corsage was of white gladioli.

Table appointments where the bride cut the three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, were in crystal.

Guests at the reception were the bride's father R. E. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. McPherson, Mrs. Paul Kennedy, Bucyrus; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Hayes, Coshocton; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bearman, Mrs. Jennie Reeves, Mrs. Jack Reeves, Frank A. Dye, Mrs. Jennie Armstrong, Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Dountz, Ashville, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bach, Mrs. Martin Wilde, Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bach, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Bach and daughter, Pherson.

Later in the evening the newly married couple left for Cincinnati where they will spend a short honeymoon and will go from there to Washington, D. C. where Mr. Kelly has a government position. For her going-away costume Mrs. Kelly wore a Hunter-green suit with matching hat and a cream colored top-coat.

The bride is a graduate of the Bucyrus high school and also attended school of dramatics at Pittsburgh where she has been teaching in the public schools for the last 7 years. Mr. Kelly who was recently discharged from service with the rank of Captain attended public school and college in Pittsburgh and was inducted into the army upon completion of his college course. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Kelley Sr., Pittsburgh.

Miss Jane Ferguson Norbert Kelly Are Wed

Pherson Church Is Scene Of Wedding Ceremony

Sentiment marked the ceremony that united in marriage Miss Jane Ferguson and Norbert L. Kelly, Jr. Sunday afternoon in the little Methodist church at Pherson which had been founded by her grandfather the late I. A. McPherson.

Miss Ferguson who is the daughter of R. E. and the late Mrs. Ferguson, Bucyrus, came from her home to be married in the church which her mother had attended as a girl and the ceremony marked the first time a wedding had been performed there.

For the occasion the chancel of the church had been banked with ferns and baskets of white chrysanthemums. Tall cathedral candles cast a glow over the party as the Rev. G. C. Reed, pastor of the Methodist church of Mt. Sterling read the double ring service.

Mrs. R. W. Ferguson, sister-in-law of the bride acted as matron of honor and Mrs. Paul Kennedy was the bride's other attendant. Robert W. Ferguson, brother of the bride acted as best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Harmon Bach, a cousin of the bride served as usher.

For her wedding Miss Ferguson chose a white chiffon floor length gown with low fitted waistline, bracelet length sleeves and full flowing skirt. Her veil which was also of chiffon fell from a white feathered calotte trimmed in white velvet. A fire opal pendant, a gift of the bride's mother and brought from Cairo Egypt was her only jewel. Her flowers were white mums in a cascade bouquet.

Dresses for the bride's attendants were made alike, tunic style, floor length with drop shoulder sleeves. Mrs. Ferguson's was in Chinese fuchsia and Mrs. Kennedy's in turquoise. Matching gloves and hats with shoulder length veils were worn and they carried arm bouquets of rose colored chrysanthemums. Gold choker necklaces worn by them were gifts from the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McPherson, the bride's uncle and aunt.

The wedding party greeted their guests in front of the chrysanthemum banked fireplace. Mrs. Robert Ewing, Bucyrus, cousin of the bride dressed in a flowered purple gown with matching hat played a selection of wedding music during the reception. Assisting the bride in receiving her guests, her aunt, Mrs. McPherson wore a purple crepe dress trimmed in velvet with a white hat. Her corsage was of white gladioli.

Table appointments where the bride cut the three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, were in crystal.

Guests at the reception were the bride's father R. E. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. McPherson, Mrs. Paul Kennedy, Bucyrus; Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Hayes, Coshocton; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bearman, Mrs. Jennie Reeves, Mrs. Jack Reeves, Frank A. Dye, Mrs. Jennie Armstrong, Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Dountz, Ashville, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bach, Mrs. Martin Wilke, Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bach, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Bach and daughter, Pherson.

Later in the evening the newly married couple left for Cincinnati where they will spend a short honeymoon and will go from there to Washington, D. C. where Mr. Kelly has a government position. For her going-away costume Mrs. Kelley wore a Hunter-green suit with matching hat and a cream colored top-coat.

The bride is a graduate of the Bucyrus high school and also attended school of dramatics at Pittsburgh where she has been teaching in the public schools for the last 7 years. Mr. Kelly who was recently discharged from service with the rank of Captain attended public school and college in Pittsburgh and was inducted into the army upon completion of his college course. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Kelley Sr., Pittsburgh.

Donald W. White, Miss Irwin Married

The Rev. Carl Kennedy performed the ceremony Saturday evening at the Presbyterian manse which united in marriage Donald Wesley White, son of Troy White, Seyfert Ave. and Miss Kathryn Elizabeth Irwin a registered nurse of Hanover.

SIX PRO TEAMS IN TITLE RACE; RAMS LOSE ONE

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—With the National Football league season half over, six of the 10 teams still were in the championship race today and it appeared the fight would continue down to the final game.

Green Bay, Cleveland and Detroit each had won four and lost one in the western division, and Boston and Washington each had won three and lost one in the East. Philadelphia Eagles were close behind with two and two.

The Eagles got back into the running yesterday by handing the Cleveland Rams their first loss, 28 to 14, before a record crowd of 38,149 at Philadelphia. Roy Zimmerman led the winners, passing 50 yards for one touchdown, plunging for another and starring on defense. Both teams scored during the last 50 seconds of the game.

Sammy Baugh's passing—19 completions in 23 throws—paced Washington to a 24 to 14 win over New York. His passes gained 231 yards for the Redskins.

Green Bay, the defending champion, rode over the Chicago Cardinals, 33 to 14. Don Hutson scored 21 points for the Packers with three touchdowns and three conversions. He caught two touchdowns and once ran 10 yards on an end-around to score. Detroit made good use of the "breaks" to defeat the Chicago Bears, 16 to 10. An intercepted pass gave Detroit its first score, and a penalty on Chicago helped the Lions to their second. It was the fifth straight loss for the team which once dominated the league.

A Boston touchdown outweighed two Pittsburgh field goals in a 10 to 6 victory.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

But do not gaze at that too long or you will get dizzy and thus develop the necessary qualifications to be an economist, yourself. The fellow in the straight jacket there at the right is the former reversion official let go by Mr. Truman, for figuring out there would be a 50 percent wage increase without a price increase.

Notice the effect on your ear drums going through this tunnel, as when you ride a subway under the river. We must be near the White House. It is pressure generated by the CIO-PAC to keep Mr. Truman earlocked until he decides the union way.

Now we come to that heavy figure there—the shadow with his back turned is John L. Lewis. He is not sad. He always keeps his back turned. He has just called off the coal strike.

They say he was not critically interested in the cause of the strike which was to force the coal companies to let foremen join Lewis, and the strikers were losing so much in money, and possibly his union in dues and expenditures, that the expense may not have justified what he would get in dues from the foremen.

So he called it off announcing he did so "in the public interest," thereby becoming the first labor leader I can recall who even claimed he was stopping a strike for the public. This should put him in the imperishable hall of fame. Lewis is always first in everything.

The Eagles got back into the running yesterday by handing the Cleveland Rams their first loss, 28 to 14, before a record crowd of 38,149 at Philadelphia. Roy Zimmerman led the winners, passing 50 yards for one touchdown,

Tangled Romance

IT BEGAN when Mary Cardin, New York, told her parents she had married Seaman James Bass, USN. To make good the story, they started hitch hiking to Elkhart, Md., famous Cupid-town, for the ceremony. They innocently got a lift in a stolen car, and were jailed with the guilty driver. Trial in separate courts was arranged, but the Navy resented Jimmy's behavior. Finally, a kindly magistrate went to bat for them, and they were married in New York. (International)

1. She would have been a nurse if she'd followed her original intentions. But her beautiful voice carried her to the stage and then to radio. Today she's probably the best-known feminine radio star--in addition to a weekly musical program, she broadcasts a daily commentary show.

He became so interested in music, he dropped law. Today he conducts the "Highways in Melody" as well as the Stradivari orchestras.
5. He was an outstanding stage actor along the West Coast and took a flyer in radio about 10 years ago. Today the program on which he stars is the number one dramatic show on the air. We'll give you a hint--it's heard Wednesday nights.
6. One of radio's newest stars, this tenor was a professional newspaper photographer on the Birmingham (Ala.) Post. His first sponsored network series as star of the Powder Box Theatre started October 11.
7. He bears his father's name and at one time never thought he'd live up to it as a musician. Today he's accomplished in many fields--his records are top sellers, his band a famous one, he's appeared in motion pictures and his newest assignment, as emcee of the Sunday afternoon RCA program, makes him a 4-A man.

Glenn W. Barnhart, B-29 Navigator, Plans Return To School

LOCAL YOUTH TAKES PART IN RECORD FLIGHT

13,305 Mile Journey From Guam To Capital Ends Round-The-World Trip

Lt. Glenn W. Barnhart is planning to go to school at Ohio State university soon and forget all about flying.

The young man who has been placed on inactive status after eight months on a B-29 as a navigator says he intends to confine his travelling to the ground from now on. He wants no more flying.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Barnhart, Montclair avenue, had his longest trip on his way back to the United States and civilian life. He participated in a record-making trip from Guam.

He was the navigator on the "Ernie Pyle," the Superfort that brought Lt. Gen. Nathan Twining, commanding general of the 20th Air Force back to Washington over a brand new air route. There were three B-29s in the group, bringing home 40 AAF veterans.

The group took off from Guam October 16, stopped at Karachi, India, October 17; Frankfurt, Germany, October 18 and landed in Washington October 20. Flying time for the 13,305 mile flight was 60 hours and 14 minutes.

From there Lt. Barnhart went to Camp Atterbury, Indiana, and then home, arriving in Circleville last Friday.

His journey home completed a flying trip around the world for Lt. Barnhart. He left home 2 years and 8 months ago to go into service. After training at various fields he left Kearney, Nebraska, in a B-29 for the Pacific. The ships flew first to San Francisco, then Hawaii, Kwajalein, Guam and Tinian.

Young Barnhart was on 23 bombing missions over Japan, flying from the island of Tinian. He stated he did not mind the flak and other difficulties encountered while on missions nearly as much as the takeoff and landings.

He was home about four months ago and took a month's special training in the United States before returning to the Pacific. He got back in time to participate in two more missions. He was on a ship which dropped supplies to prisoner-of-war camps after the war ended.

Much of his time after he returned was spent as an instructor. Although he did not take part in the atomic bombing of Jap cities, Lt. Barnhart did do some flying in the famed "Nola Gray", the ship which was used in atom bombing. The big ship was based on Tinian and he was on it several times, he related.

Now the youthful navigator states he is willing to forget all about the excitement of war and flying and complete the education which the war interrupted.

LEAVES SET ON FIRE BY 'KIDS', FIREMEN REPORT

Three dangerous fires were set by youngsters in premature and "heedless" Halloween "pranks" Sunday night. Leaves were set fire on Scioto street three times after 9 p. m., city firemen reported.

"These fires are dangerous, in that they may set fire to automobiles or kill valuable trees. They also may start grass fires which could easily endanger property and lives," Fire Chief Talmer Wise stated.

"The city has an ordinance against burning leaves on the street. The parents of the children should see that they do not participate in such carelessness. When they do they are breaking the law. Not only are these fires dangerous, but the cost of trips made by the fire department is high and must be borne by the taxpayers," the fire chief explained.

SCOUTS GIVE SAFETY HINTS

'Tombstone' Window Display Attracts Much Attention; Leaflets Distributed

Small groups of silent onlookers have been gathering around the Ohio Fuel Co. window—silently studying the slogans on the safety posters there—and slowly—even solemnly gazing at the tombstones—thinking deeply about a lesson that strikes home deep to them.

That is what the safety window put in by the Boy Scouts of Troop 121, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce does to you—it makes you stop and think. The posters seem to apply to you, not to some other person, but to you.

This is because the display concerns everyday activities of everyday folks. It hits everyone. Because nearly everyone has been injured in an accident or perhaps suffered the loss of a friend or relative due to an accident. And everyone in his daily life, at work, play, or in homelife runs into dozens of situations that call for close observance of safety rules.

When you read the slogan, "Fallen leaves are always slippery," you think about the time your car skidded on wet leaves when you were going a bit too fast, and you said to yourself, "Boy was I lucky not to have been hurt bad."

You leave the window, but the slogans stay with you. You drive your car down the street you see a group of youngsters crossing the street about a block down.

"No, they're not crossing, they're going out to get their football. Wait, what's that on the street," you say. "Those are leaves and those are kids on the street. You remember the slogan about the leaves and the one that read, 'Watch out for youngsters' and you think, 'I'm going too fast. I'd better slow down—just to be on the safe side.'"

What could have been a disaster has been averted. You even feel a little better for having obeyed the safety rules. You are glad you read those posters. And to top it all you have decided that maybe you weren't in such a big hurry after all.

There are many other slogans in the window put in by the Boy Scouts—slogans that are very effective in putting over their lessons about home, auto, bicycle, fire prevention, industrial, and sports safety. Slogans that are short and easily remembered.

Slogans like "Never feel safe enough to be careless," "Danger—remove nails—pile boards carefully in a safe place" and "Learn how to ring a fire alarm before you need to do it," and many others that it would be best that you go and read for yourself.

And most effective of all the tombstones, on the green plot, in the window—with the inscriptions printed by the Boy Scouts themselves, not by a commercial printer—so that they look almost like the dead-through-accidents had written them themselves—all in the first person.

In the center, "Through carelessness we rest," and among the other self-made graves, "I was a jay walker," "I smoked in bed," "I hooked a ride on a truck with my bicycle," and "I kept ashes in a wooden container."

The Scouts under the leadership of Bob Dean, Scoutmaster, are busy distributing pamphlets in the schools. Bike safety is being stressed. Some of these pamphlets will find their way into the hands of the parents, parents who can help their children learn, can talk it over with them, and maybe even learn something new or relearn something they have forgotten—all for a safe and sane and happy post-war world.

Glenn W. Barnhart, B-29 Navigator, Plans Return To School

LOCAL YOUTH TAKES PART IN RECORD FLIGHT

13,305 Mile Journey From Guam To Capital Ends Round-The-World Trip

Lt. Glenn W. Barnhart is planning to go to school at Ohio State university soon and forget all about flying.

The young man who has been placed on inactive status after eight months on a B-29 as a navigator says he intends to confine his traveling to the ground from now on. He wants no more flying.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Barnhart, Montclair avenue, had his longest trip on his way back to the United States and civilian life. He participated in a record-making trip from Guam.

He was the navigator on the "Ernie Fyle," the Superfort that brought Lt. Gen. Nathan Twining, commanding general of the 20th Air Force base to Washington over a brand new air route. There were three B-29s in the group, bringing home 40 AAF veterans.

The group took off from Guam October 16, stopped at Karachi, India, October 17; Frankfurt, Germany, October 18 and landed in Washington October 20. Flying time for the 13,305 mile flight was 60 hours and 14 minutes.

From there Lt. Barnhart went to Camp Atterbury, Indiana, and then home, arriving in Circleville last Friday.

His journey home completed a flying trip around the world for Lt. Barnhart. He left home 2 years and 8 months ago to go into service. After training at various fields he left Kearney, Nebraska, in a B-29 for the Pacific. The ships flew first to San Francisco, then Hawaii, Kwajalein, Guam and Tinian.

Young Barnhart was on 23 bombing missions over Japan, flying from the island of Tinian. He stated he did not mind the flak and other difficulties encountered while on missions nearly as much as the takeoff and landings.

He was home about four months ago and took a month's special training in the United States before returning to the Pacific. He got back in time to participate in two more missions. He was on a ship which dropped supplies to prisoner-of-war camps after the war ended.

Much of his time after he returned was spent as an instructor. Although he did not take part in the atomic bombing of Japan, Lt. Barnhart did do some flying in the famed "Nola Gray," the ship which was used in atomic bombing. The big ship was based on Tinian and he was on it several times, he related.

Now the youthful navigator states he is willing to forget all about the excitement of war and flying and complete the education which the war interrupted.

LEAVES SET ON FIRE BY 'KIDS', FIREMEN REPORT

Three dangerous fires were set by youngsters in premature and "heedless" Halloween "pranks" Sunday night. Leaves were set fire on Scioto street three times after 9 p. m., city firemen reported.

"These fires are dangerous, in that they may set fire to automobiles or kill valuable trees. They also may start grass fires which could easily endanger property and lives," Fire Chief Talmer Wise stated.

"The city has an ordinance against burning leaves on the street. The parents of the children should see that they do not participate in such carelessness. When they do they are breaking the law. Not only are these fires dangerous, but the cost of trips made by the fire department is high and must be borne by the taxpayers," the fire chief explained.

POCKET HOUND

BRAZIL, Ind.—Capt. John Kraka outwitted the Army when he brought home a small dog. He says it is a "pedigreed German Reindeer hound" and that he took it prisoner at Frankfurt on Main, Germany. ## SCOUTS GIVE SAFETY HINTS

'Tombstone' Window Display Attracts Much Attention; Leaflets Distributed

Small groups of silent onlookers have been gathering around the Ohio Fuel Co. window—silently studying the slogans on the safety posters there—and slowly—even solemnly—gazing at the tombstones—thinking deeply about a lesson that strikes home deep to them.

That is what the safety window put in by the Boy Scouts of Troop 121, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce does to you—it makes you stop and think. The posters seem to apply to you, not to some other person, but to you.

This is because the display concerns everyday activities of everyday folks. It hits everyone. Because nearly everyone has been injured in an accident or perhaps suffered the loss of a friend or relative due to an accident. And everyone in his daily life, at work, play, or in homelife runs into dozens of situations that call for close observation of safety rules.

When you read the slogan, "Fallen leaves are always slippery," you think about the time your car skidded on wet leaves when you were going a bit too fast, and you said to yourself, "Boy was I lucky not to have been hurt bad."

You leave the window, but the slogans stay with you. You drive your car down the street you see a group of youngsters crossing the street about a block down.
